Victims Fear Reprisals

It happens too frequently to be ignored.

It has to do with the victims of a crime—such as armed robbery.

The thought didn't arise just with the robbery of the liquor store in Lemon Grove on Tuesday, October 10. The thought has been brewing for weeks.

It should be noted that good police work by deputies of the Lemon Grove office of the Sheriff's Department caught the suspect in minutes after a high speed chase into southeast San Diego.

We listened to the tape of the radio communications following the suspects arrest and we go on record as recognizing such work is hazardous to police health.

Cops don't complain. They get paid for the hazard.

The fugitive was an expert driver who reached 90 miles an hour in his late model car. Deputies who followed had to: answer radio central; operate the car's siren, and try to unlock the shotguns they might have to use when the chase ended.

They also had to drive their one-man patrol cars.

One driver nearly crashed into an oncoming car when he curled around a slow vehicle. Another missed going over an embankment by sheer luck. The flight ended when the fugitive crashed into an innocent victim's car in an intersection.

The suspect jumped from his car with shotgun drawn. The first deputy on the scene had to lie on his patrol car floor to avert being shot, while, at the same time, attempting to unlock his shotgun.

The suspect was shot in the end in the end—legs and buttock—and surrendered without injuring his captors.

But victims is the subject. What happens after the robbery is over?

In the case of the Tuesday robbery, the victim was a 22-year old woman. The suspect kidnapped her, holding a gun at her head during part of the holdup and flight. That was traumatic enough, but her continuing fear is concern of reprisal.

She asked that her name not be given lest some of the suspect's associates do her harm.

This case is not unusual. It's just current.

Sam Cripps, former assistant manager of a Lemon Grove bank and now manager of one in Chula Vista was held up and kidnapped two weeks ago. He had to get security people to guard his home and family for part of a week before he recovered somewhat from fear of reprisal.

The Lemon Grove woman who was an almost-victim of the old pigeon-drop caper refused to testify against the perpetrators to whom she narrowly averted giving her life's savings. She said she would discuss it with the sheriff's fraud detail only if she could be assured that her identity would not be revealed. She, too, said she feared reprisals.

These three incidents occurred this month and represent only people residing in Lemon Grove. Several others occurred county-wide during the same period.

Robbery and fraud are serious crimes, so why do we make an issue of these three?

Because it is a sad commentary on the effectiveness of our courts. Some judges put guilty people on probation sending them right back in the community where they committed the crime.

It is little wonder that the public is concerned and many people are frightened.

There are enough laws to incarcerate the guilty but some judges use the excuse for their leniency that jails are already overcrowded.

A good example of the lenient attitude is the El Cajon man who could have been confined on a number of charges but was released to make good his reported threat of murder. He killed his wife and himself.

The judge who handled that problem ought to be proud of himself!

Most judges must stand for election although nearly all of them are originally appointed. Judges, by profession are attorneys but it is considered next to sinful for a lawyer to run against the incumbent.

Perhaps we should lift the cover which protects judges at election time and encourage capable persons to enter the race.

Many voters are displeased with the wrist-slapping given to criminals by some of the judges.

Council Orders Study Of L.G. Methadone Site

An incipient neighborhood hassle surfaced at the Monday meeting of the Lemon Grove City Council.

Dr. Robert Kahn of San Diego, whose doctorate is a PhD, defended a methadone treatment center opening soon in the 1400 block of Skyline dr., a few hundred feet north of the Skyline Wesleyan Church.

Dr. Dennis McLaughlin, a dentist, whose property is at 1411 Skyline, has been vocal in his objection, but did not appear at the Monday meeting.

Dr. Kahn said he had no connection with the center which he called a "medical care center" in which other medical treatment will be given. He also refused to reveal who the operators of the center are.

He did say that a maximum of 50 drug abuse patients at a time would be undergoing daily methadone treatments for 21 days. Council instructed staff to get full information regarding ownership and type of operation intended for the center.

The council, minus Dr. Robert Burns and Mayor Jim Dorman, in other business, referred a request for alley vacation back to staff when Dan Thren, property owner, said he would agree to any demands made upon the condition of closing the property which is behind his business location.

A request for a rezoning from R-2-A (residential) to C-zone (commercial) by D. N. Harmon was rejected. City Attorney Don McLean explained to council that the request could not be acted upon without first changing the community plan. The developers plan a 30,000 square ft. 2-story center on the property.

November 11 at Mt. Miguel. It will be a musical salute to the new City of Lemon Grove, they said.

Two resolutions were approved. One authorized an agreement between the county and City of Lemon Grove for a Community Development program.

The other authorized the merger of the L.G. Fire District with the City of L.G.

An ordinance changing the zoning on a property at the north end of Crane st. from R-2-A to R-1-A, was approved.

County Charter Changes Viewed

The County's Charter Review Committee will hold its second public meeting October 27 in an effort to get suggestions and ideas from the public about updating the County's 44-year old Charter.

The meeting will be 7-9:30 p.m. in Room 303 of the County Administration Center, 1600 Pacific Highway.

Some of the areas of concern presently under consideration by the Committee include whether the county should have a mayor, how many County supervisors ought to be elected, and whether supervisors should be elected county-wide rather than by district.

County residents are encouraged to attend the meeting and help participate in the charter review process.

The County Charter has been referred to as the "dinosaur of documents". The Charter was adopted by voters in 1933 and has not undergone a major revision in the last 44 years.

The only way for the Charter to be updated is by having measures placed on the election ballot and successfully adopted by county voters.

Undergrounding of utility lines along Imperial from Broadway to Cypress was approved.

The city attorney was instructed to draw up a bingo ordinance it being at the request of William Blake, Bingo director, Lemon Grove VFW Post 2082.

The Monday meeting was adjourned to October 24 at 6:30 at which time the meeting will be at the L.G. Fire Department conference room.

The nomination and election of the 30 representatives took place October 11 at 25 sites throughout the county. The 30 representatives then chose 6 people from among themselves to represent the regional council on the Community Action Partnership (CAP) Administering Board created by the Board of Supervisors. The Board is scheduled to become effective November 1. The terms of the elected representatives is 3 years.

Representatives of the public sector will serve for one year and private sector representatives will serve for 2 years.

The CAP Administering Board will advise the Board of Supervisors about how to spend Federal money which comes to the County for social service programs.

(S)KOOL AID — Nadine Smith, editor of Mt. Miguel High School's El Trovador newspaper, holds school calendar to be sold to students. Proceeds will go for school workshop and newspaper expenses. LG Students To Collect Newspapers for UW-Chad

At least three Lemon Grove Elementary Schools will donate the proceeds of Saturday's newspaper collection drive to the current United Way-Chad campaign.

San Miguel Elementary and San Altos Elementary will both donate 100 percent of Saturday's collections to the United Way while Golden Avenue

School plans to donate a portion of their collections to the current CHAD campaign. San Altos Elementary Principal Harold Ball said he anticipated his students to raise about $50-$60 worth of newspapers in the drive.

The principal added the idea of the newspaper collection was "to teach children to care for those less fortunate" and to earn money in subsequent drives for school assemblies.

San Altos School plans to hold a newspaper collection drive once a month.

Golden Avenue School's principal Elsa Hanning said her school will collect newspapers on the fourth Thursday each month. Hanning said the collections, under the auspices of the Golden Avenue Student Council, will donate a portion of their first receipts to the CHAD campaign.

All newspaper drives throughout the Lemon Grove School District have morning pick-up times around 9 a.m. requiring newspaper donors to deliver their unwanted papers to the schools before noon.

The newspapers do not have to be bundled as in the past and the company buying the newspapers refuses to collect magazines or telephone books.

The students will receive about $120 a ton for the papers.

S.V. Fire Damage is $50,000

Damage estimated to $50,000 resulted from a fire to the single-family Spring Valley home of Dorothy Hendricks at 10265 Fairhill dr. in the Edgewater Estates area of Monte Vista High school Tuesday.

The fire, which started in the garage, involved the entire roof before it was seen by neighbors who alerted the fire department.

S.V. F.D. Battalion Chief Ron Lucas said the house had shake shingles and "They burn like crazy."

Damage to the 3-bedroom and stucco building was said to be $40,000 to the structure and $10,000 to contents.

Hendricks was at work when the fire occurred but her eldest son, Douglas, 15, was at home.

SET RECORD — During Saturday's open house at the Lemon Grove Fire Station, Fireman Dan Mark and Ray Harper set a record with the Hurst Power Tool, a tool firemen use to free motorists trapped in their demolished vehicles.

The firemen removed the doors and roof of this Oldsmobile station wagon in less than five minutes. About 600 people attended the films, demonstrations, and displays arranged by Lemon Grove firemen.

There's An Answer

By Mr. and Mrs.
Norman Vincent Peale

The end if wife leaves

Q. I was hurt by a girl and began drugs and alcohol which led to trouble for me. I was arrested and then I met my wife. With her my whole life changed.

She knew about the trouble I was into. It did not turn her against me, because she loved me and says she still does.

She insisted we get married before I did time in prison. I tried to let her back out but she insisted, so we got married.

Now she says she wants a divorce. I'm going home soon and have begged and pleaded with her but to no good.

I feel if I lose her the world might as well end. I dearly love her and I'm being hurt. I'd appreciate your answer and I'd like my wife to read it.

A. Let us hope your wife will stand by you as you head into a new life of self-control and creativity. She will prove herself a really strong person if she does.

But if she chooses to leave you, then just go ahead on your own. It is silly to say that if you "lose her the world might as well end."

Be a man; live your own life. As a matter of fact, as you do that she just might have more respect and even more love for you. If she does not, then perhaps you do not really need her at all.

We have a booklet, YOU'VE GOT A FUTURE, that has helped others with problems such as yours and a copy of it is on its way to you. Any reader wishing a copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Living in Sin

Q. Our 20-year-old daughter was a good girl and went to church every Sunday with us. But a year ago a boy her age talked her into having sex with him.

When I found out she was staying at his apartment almost every night for sex, I told her to leave home.

To me she was filthy, living in sin.

So now, they are living together and we have very little to do with her.

Skyline Notes

A Prayer Seminar taught by pastors of Skyline Wesleyan Church will be conducted Sunday in the Lower Auditorium of the church.

The 45 minute seminar will begin at 4:30 p.m.

The next adult baptism to be held at Skyline will be October 30.

Also the next baptism of infants is set for November 13. Parents or candidates should contact the church to make service arrangements.

The Wesleyan Men will host a Family Sports Fishing Trip Saturday morning. Members of the fishing party will leave from docks at 5:30 a.m.

But we love her. When she's told that she lives in sin, she replies, "Not if you're in love."

"I've cried many buckets of tears and asked the Lord why did He allow this to happen. I've put her in the Lord's hands, and perhaps she'll come home to us and ask forgiveness. But so far the devil has won out. Why?"

A. We would hazard the guess that if the devil has won out thus far in connection with your problem, it could be because of the absence of four powerful and positive factors: love, compassion, understanding and forgiveness.

When those qualities are absent, the devil can well have a field day.

That your daughter is engaged in a wrong way of life, we agree. Her excuse that what she is doing is all right "when you're in love" is a specious and invalid rationalization.

But your method of dealing with the matter is very likely to be ineffective until your spiritual and parental love is stronger than the so-called love of a boy who perhaps wants her only for physical purposes.

Not Married

Q. My boy friend and I have been going steady for have a daughter two years old.

I love him and I really believe he loves me. He's 26 and I am 19.

I asked him a long time ago why he didn't want to marry me and he says he is not ready. But out of all that we get along OK. I want to know why we haven't married in this length of time.

A. Likely he will never be ready to marry you. And the reason? He just doesn't want you enough to assume marital responsibility.

One wonders how dumb women can be not to realize these boy friends want sex without having a legal wife on their hands. And so-called sophisticated girls still fall for marry you" bunk. Better check this relationship off now while you are still young. Clear the way for a boy friend who will love you and marry you.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale to discuss in this column, write to them in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Ugly Mood, Dangerous Chiefs (0-5) Here Sun.

We did it once. We can do it again.

If Charger head coach Tommy Prothro believes that, he isn't saying so about the Kansas City Chiefs who arrive here Sunday with a 0-5 record.

He managed a hedge Tuesday at the regular meeting of the Sportscasters/Sportswriters meeting.

"We 'ought' to beat them," he opined.

The Chargers beat the Chiefs 23-7 three weeks ago in Kansas City. That started them on a 3-game winning streak that ended — not ingloriously — last week when New England broke the streak 24-20.

"We had opportunities to win the game," said Prothro laconically.

The Chiefs lost its 5th in a row last week 17-6 to Baltimore. They are probably in an ugly mood. That makes them dangerous.

The Chiefs leads in the series 18-16-1 and have won their last 5 games played in San Diego. The Chargers record at home against them is 7-9-1; the last win being in 1971 when they were 21-14.

Last week there was a record.

The Chargers' Don Woods set a club record when he gained 78 yards on a pass from quarterback James Harris. The distance was longest for a nonscoring pass, breaking the mark of 71 yards set by quarterback John Hadl and tight end Jacque MacKinnon against the Boston Patriots Sept. 9, 1967, in San Diego Stadium. Safety Mike Fuller intercepted his fourth pass in four games. The Chargers' record for consecutive games with interceptions is 5 by Charlie McNeil in 1961. Bryant Salter also intercepted passes in four consecutive games in 1972.

The 19th crowd of 50,000 or more gathered Sunday for the Pats game — 50,327 was the count. The Chargers opened the Stadium in 1967 with the first 50,000 game coming in 1976 when Oakland helped draw 50,523.

Tickets for good seats are still available at the ticket office at Stadium gate E 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Tickets may be picked up for future games — Denver, November 13; Oakland, November 20; Cleveland, December 4 and Pittsburgh, December 18.

And then, perhaps, the playoffs.

The game Sunday will be broadcast on KSDO with Jerry Goss, John DeMott and Scott Gregory as the voices. Pat Curran's NFL Weekend begins at 10:50 a.m. followed by Charger Talk at 11 with Bob Chandler and Bruce Walton. DeMott will host the Prothro Show at 12:35 with the game preview at 12:50. Chargers Talk resumes after the Lockerroom Show following the game.

Cajon Speedway Finale In First Split Program

The end of a 6½ months grind will end Saturday when the 1977 auto racing season ends at Cajon Speedway.

The season is ending with a first. For the first time in its 17-year history of his Gillespie Field racing plant, promoter Earle Bruecker Jr. has

Suwara's Spikers In Busy Weekend

San Diego State's women's volleyball team faces a busy schedule this weekend as Rudy Suwara's team hosts UC Riverside at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Peterson Gym and then plays twice on Saturday against San Jose State and Pepperdine with both matches being played in Malibu.

Last week the Aztecs dropped a pair of matches to see their record fall to 1-9 overall and 1-4 in conference play.

USC topped the Aztecs 3-0 by scores of 15-9, 15-6, 15-3 and Long Beach State beat SDSU 3-1 by scores of 16-14, 15-11, 7-15, 15-10.

In the Long Beach Match, Laura Sell paced the Aztecs with 14 kills while Nancy Loos had 11. The Aztecs also learned that they will be without the services of Wendy Wheat for two weeks as she has a stress fracture on her left foot and Delia Schweers who has hepatitis.

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

"Breathes there a lad with dirt on his face who hasn't measured the Charger's pace and looked to the future and dared to dream that some day he'd play on the Charger team!"

That's the way of it. There's not a kid alive and worth a Saturday night's scrubbing that doesn't dream of someday growing up and playing for his favorite team.

Thousands, maybe hundreds of thousands of kids run, pass, kick and catch with the name of their hero on the wind as they run and tumble in fall's delight. Listen next time you pass a playground.

"I'm James Harris, watch me throw." "Watch me cut like I'm Johnny R. SuperStar." "I'm Pat Curran and I can catch anything you can throw." "I'm Louie Kelcher and I can knock down mountains."

Football is a game for grown men and miniatures, too. The game is in the blood. Boys (and a few girls, too, now-a-days) start to play at the tender age of three and four. Some of them are still at it in their forties and us older folks have taken to talking about how we played in the days of the single wing and the Notre Dame box.

The dream is for the young and the day-dream is for the older lads and dads. To grow up and live the dream is for the few. The very, very few.

And the San Diego Chargers have a couple of those lucky troopers in tow and on the firing line.

Rolf Benirschke is a soccer style boomer from La Jolla High and Dwight McDonald learned his receiving at Kearny High.

But if either player hadn't had the kind of down-to-earth solid influence they received from their high school mentors, the chances are neither would be playing for Tommy Prothro's behemoths.

Benirschke (pronounced Ben-ersh-ka) got his start from Bull Trometter and Gene Edwards at La Jolla. "He was playing soccer and I had him kick a few balls for us in the spring of his junior year," remembers Bull. "He hit from 12, then 20 and finally from 35 yards out. And he was wearing street shoes."

"You don't normally take on specialists in high school football, but Rolf was really something special. He was an outstanding student and a real level-headed lad. I think he scored 50 points for us that fall, including a 48 yard field goal against Madison."

Rolf went to UC Davis to major in Zoology, and he kicked himself into the hearts of Aggie football fans with 29 of 43 boots, set a school record with a 52-yarder and hit on 58 of 60 PATs. He was drafted by Oakland last spring and survived until the last cut. The next day he was signed by the Chargers. A home town kid comes home, a dream come true.

"He'll be hitting 50 yarders and kicking off out of the end zone in a couple of years," says Bull. "He's a helluva kid."

McDonald roared out of Kearny with the advice of Birt Slater logged in his think-bone. He raced into national honors by catching everything in sight for San Diego State to earn the NCAA receiving crown in 1974.

He got a bad rap when tested for speed on the quagmire practice field at Montezuma Mesa and got skipped in the NFL draft.

He proved his stuff as a free agent, which tells you something about pro-football scouts, and is coming on as one of the surest pair of hands Charger quarterbacks can find. Undraftable, he's in his 3rd year.

Rolf and Dwight are suitable heroes for today's dreamers. And the best part is, both are the kind of guys you'd like your kids to be.

1978 Andy Williams Purse Tops $200,000

Topping the $200,000 mark in total prize money for the first time in its history, the 11th annual Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament January 25-29 at Torrey Pines also boasts as its defending champion the top performer of the 1977 PGA tour, Tom Watson.

A total of $210,000 is offered; $10,000 for the Celebrity Pro-Am on January 25 and the remainder for the four-day Open to follow. Winner of the big event takes home $40,000.

Watson comes off a sensational year during which he defeated the incomparable Jack Nicklaus in head-to-head battles in the Masters and British Open championships. In addition to those two major titles, the 28-year-old Stanford graduate captured the Western Open, Crosby Clambake and, of course, the AWSDO.

In winning the local event Watson set a new course record of 269, 19 under par and three better than the old record set by George Archer in 1971 and tied by J. C. Snead in 1976.

Expected to join Watson here, but not yet entered, are such other members of golf's heralded Youth Movement as Lanny Wadkins, Bruce Lietzke, Ben Crenshaw, Bill Kratzert, Andy Bean, Mark Hayes, Andy North and Tom Kite.

General Chairman Hal Tebbets also hopes to land some of such established stars as Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, Ray Floyd, Hubert Green, Miller Barber and Jerry McGee. San Diego veterans, Gene Littler and Billy Casper, always factors in any event, are expected as usual.

The AWSDO is co-sponsored by Andy Williams and the Century Club of San Diego as it has been since 1968. It is a continuation of the San Diego Open which dates back to 1952 as a PGA tour stop.

Aztecs Host Nevada In Shrine Game Sat.

An explosive Nevada (Las Vegas) football team invades San Diego Stadium to meet S.D. State U. in the annual Shrine Charity Game Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The Rebels bring a 5-1 season record into Saturday's contest and boast an offense averaging 448.7 yards total offense with 261.2 of them coming through the air.

San Diego State comes into the Shrine Game with a 4-1 record after belting Texas (El Paso) 49-7 last week. In that game the Aztecs rolled up 536 yards total offense with 346 yards passing. The Aztecs are now averaging 409.6 yards total offense.

Las Vegas downed Weber State 26-13 last week after trailing 13-3 at the half. Running back Raymond Strong, who gained 907 yards last season, shook out of his slump with 239 yards and two touchdowns on 23 carries. Overall the Rebels had 301 yards rushing, but their passing attack was held in check with just 124 yards.

"Las Vegas has a good football team," said Aztec coach Claude Gilbert. "They do a lot of things on both offense and defense and when they're clicking, they can really be tough. They have good speed at the receiver spots and good strong runners."

"On defense they mix it up and gamble quite a bit, but when they are going good the gambling defense seems to be in the right spot every time."

Last week against Texas (El Paso) the Aztecs opened up early and pulled out to a 35-7 halftime lead enroute to their fourth win of the season.

Quarterback Joe Davis played only the first half, but hit on 12 of 18 passes for 230 yards and three TD's. San Diego State's All-America candidate David (Deacon) Turner had another outstanding game, rushing for 129 yards on 19 carries and scoring three times. He also caught two passes for 17 yards and fired a 40 yard pass completion.

Wide receiver Dennis Pearson had a field day with six receptions for 152 yards and two scores. One of the TD's was on a 58 yard pass from Davis.

As usual the Shrine Game will feature a pre-game Pageant with mass bands. At half-time the always spectacular Shrine Fireworks Show will be featured. "We're always happy to play in the Shrine Game because it is for such a great cause," Gilbert said. "The Shriners do a fantastic job with the Crippled Children's Hospitals."

There's More to Boxing Than a Couple of Fighters

How many people would you guess it takes to put on a card of professional boxing? Two fighters in every bout? Right? A referee? And a judge or two?

That's a pretty good start, but it's only the beginning of the number of functionaries that take part in a fight promotion.

At the San Diego Coliseum, the only place boxing in San Diego is offered on a somewhat regular schedule, there are approximately 40 people are cut in on the fight-fan dollar. And that doesn't include the facility overhead

Sheriffs Commended

Dear Editor,

I would like to express through your newspaper my appreciation and thanks to the Lemon Grove substation of the Sheriff's Department for a swift and efficient action.

Less than 24 hours after my report of a rock throwing incident to Officer Washington, the law breakers, two teenage boys, were arrested by Officers R. B. Sams and Greg Henderson from the Lemon Grove office.

The boys were arrested for driving a car without a driver's license, for racing in a residential section, for covering up the license plate for the purpose of committing a crime and for assault with a deadly weapon. All these actions occurred around my house on Osage street in Spring Valley.

Such a successful actions commands respect among criminals while offering reassurance of protection to citizens. One again, thanks for the good work and good luck to all of the men of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's substation.

Sincerely,
George J. Smith

Home Fed Adds Trust Facility

Home Fed Trust has completed its incorporation process and has been licensed to do business by the California Superintendent of Banks, announced company president John Hitchcock.

The trust company is an affiliate of Home Federal Savings and Loan Assn. the first federally chartered S&L in California and the second in the nation to be granted the opportunity to provide trust services.

Home Fed Trust will concentrate its initial efforts in a pilot marketing program at one of Home Federal's branch offices. According to Hitchcock, "Home Fed Trust wants to serve those customers who have not been able to obtain trust services economically from other institutions."

The trust prototype will involve the customer retaining full control over his assets but receiving assistance from the trust company in areas of custody, accounting, collection, cash management, tax information, etc. The trust will provide for full management by the trust company upon the customer's death or disability and should provide an alternative to conservatorship or probate.

Looking toward the company's future, Hitchcock said, "We want to provide a full range of trust services and will develop our capabilities as we grow. Currently, Home Fed Trust will discuss any proposed trust relationship with a customer and will accept any trust business we have the ability to service."

What You Should Know

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

Muscular Dystrophy

Muscular dystrophy is a term that covers a group of disorders in which there is progressive muscular deterioration.

It is estimated that about 250,000-300,000 persons in this country suffer from one form or another of muscular dystrophy.

About two-thirds of the victims are children between the ages of three and 18 years.

These disorders are usually genetically determined, but the nature of the specific defects is unknown.

It is hoped that when the defects have been identified, it will be possible to treat these diseases — perhaps by replacing missing substances in much the same way that insulin injections are used to treat diabetes.

Until the research goal is achieved very little can be done to stem the tragic deterioration that occurs among victims of muscular dystrophy.

The most common forms of muscular dystrophy are:

— Duchenne's Dystrophy. This is the most common and severe type of muscular dystrophy and is usually first noticed in children between the ages of two and six years. It is usually transmitted to males by unaffected mothers.

Parents may first suspect that the child is afflicted when he develops a waddling gait and has difficulty rising from the floor and climbing stairs.

Laboratory studies and biopsy can confirm the suspected diagnosis.

Although the child's pelvic muscles are first involved, weakness spreads to the shoulder and back muscles and then to all muscles.

The disease progresses rapidly, and the young patient is not expected to live more than 15 years after the onset of the disease.

— Facio-Scapulo-Humeral. This can be transmitted by either parent and affects males and females equally, appearing in early adolescence or in the twenties.

Its most recognizable symptoms are loss of facial expression and difficulty in raising the arms over the head.

This is the least threatening form of muscular dystrophy because it progresses slowly and rarely causes an early death although the patient may have considerable disability.

— Limb-Girdle. This usually is not transmitted to the child unless both parents are carriers of the defective genes although parents themselves are without symptoms. It can start anytime from the first to the third decade of life and occurs equally in males and females.

The muscles of the pelvis and shoulder are involved, and the rate of deterioration varies — sometimes being quite slow and sometimes rapid.

The amount of disability also varies, and in most cases, patients are not threatened with an early death.

— Myotonic Dystrophy. This form of the disease may be transmitted by either parents and affects males and females equally.

It may appear as early as puberty, and it commonly does not show up until young adulthood.

Among the early signs of the disease are stiffness in the limbs, especially after exposure to cold; inability to relax the grip after shaking hands; a tendency to trip and fall forward; and loss of facial expression.

The disability becomes severe within a 15-20 year period after onset, and patients rarely live out a normal life span.

Although a cure for muscular dystrophy is not yet available, there are a number of things a doctor can do to help the patient. Since the victims have a reduced ability to combat infection, their deaths are often related to respiratory infection.

Respiratory exercises and the use of antibiotics have extended the lives of many afflicted children. Surgery and orthopedic devices are available to prevent or reduce deformity in some patients.

Exercises that stretch tendons can help. Affected persons should be encouraged to maintain maximum activity.

Considerable help is provided patients and their families by the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America which works in close collaboration with the patient's physician.

Prepared by the California Medical Association. Specific questions on the subject should be directed to your physician.

Santa Fe Railroad Blocks S.D.-L.A. Commuter Run

The law setting up the National Rail Passenger Corp. (Amtrak) is, ironically, standing in the way of improved passenger train service for the densely populated Los Angeles-San Diego corridor, Congressman Lionel Van Deerlin, told a House subcommittee this week.

The Santa Fe Railroad has been able to use the law to block development of new commuter-like service by San Diego, Los Angeles and Orange counties, he said.

The service was proposed 3 years ago by L.A. County, which has invested more than $2 million in equipment for the new run.

The train operated by the counties would leave S.D. each morning about 5 a.m. arriving in Los Angeles 3 hours later and then depart Los Angeles around 5 p.m. for an 8 p.m. return to S.D.

"Visitors and business people could make the same-day roundtrip conveniently, and also would have better access to connecting trains in Los Angeles," Van Deerlin said.

Paul H. Reistrup, Amtrak president, testified Amtrak "will work out an arrangement" for putting on the additional train if it can obtain the consent of CalTrans, which now operates two of the five daily roundtrips on the L.A.-S.D. line. Amtrak itself operates the other 3 roundtrips.

Van Deerlin said the Amtrak law should be revised to make clear commuter-like service such as the counties are suggesting will qualify for inclusion in the Amtrak system and resultant federal aid.

He said Santa Fe once operated a commuter service over its S.D.-L.A. tracks but "evidently saw fit to abandon it to make way for more lucrative freight traffic."

"We should make sure that people take precedence over freight," he said.

Ask Your C.H.P.

CHP Capt. C.M. Douglas

Last week's question was about flares. This week, a reader asks Captain Douglas about insurance rates.

I you have a question, no matter how insignificant it may seem to you, ask it. It could save you a citation. It could even save your life.

Questions do not have to be signed and should be addressed to this newspaper. Please allow about three weeks for your answer to appear.

This Week's Question:

In your column "Ask Your C.H.P." which appeared on September 1, 1977, Captain Douglas said, "Chances are that your auto insurance rates will go up appreciably."

He was referring to action taken when a person gets a ticket for speeding.

My question is: Why do automobile insurance rates go up appreciably when you get a ticket for speeding, i.e., if there is no loss to the insurance company.

Very truly yours,
Newell H. Laskey

This Week's Answer:

The reason that insurance companies raise premium rates after a driver is convicted of a "moving violation" is that the driver presents a higher risk of becoming involved in a traffic accident.

The Auto Insurance Industry uses the driving record of an individual as an index to determine if he/she is a high risk.

Most insurance companies do not raise the premium after a first conviction of a minor moving violation. Upon conviction of a second offense, the premiums may be raised, as two convictions in a short period of time propose a negligent driver who statistically represents a higher risk of becoming involved in a traffic accident.

For example, if you are involved in a traffic accident, the chances of being killed are 52% greater at 65 mph than at 55 mph.

The larger liability law suits evolve out of fatal and injury accidents, so you can see how insurance companies are concerned about speeding citations. Granted that there is no immediate financial loss to the company for a conviction, but there is a potential for a financial loss to the company since a traffic accident in the future is quite possible.

In summary, the Auto Insurance premiums to cover the costs of claims which are increasing.

Since they must raise rates to cover the claims, they use traffic citations as an index to single out possible negligent drivers so the good drivers aren't penalized by higher premium rates.

New State Law Mandates Phones for the Deaf

SACRAMENTO — An act passed by the California Legislature may open the telephone lines to some 200,000 deaf persons by allowing them to rent special telephone-teletype equipment they formerly were forced to buy.

California Governor Jerry Brown has signed a bill which directs the Public Utilities Commission to establish a rate structure so telephone companies can lease expensive telephone-teletype equipment to deaf persons.

The equipment costs between $600 and $1,000 per unit. State Rehabilitation Director Ed Roberts said many deaf persons could not afford to buy the equipment and welcomed the new law.

"Until now, few deaf persons have been able to purchase the devices," Roberts explained. "The legislation will provide greater safety to those persons as well as making life easier for them."

"We hope to make a variety of machines available to deaf persons, their friends and relatives," continued Roberts.

"This will be a major step forward for the deaf in California."

The Public Utilities Commission now has the task of developing a rate structure so that the expensive equipment may be leased from telephone companies at a reasonable monthly charge.
